MAY FIGHT "OPEN SHOP"

Proper for Them to Work in Furtherance of Their Own Welfare So Long as They Do Not Employ

OMAHA, NEB., October 23.—The right of labor unions to combine and o make use of the "peaceful picket" to fight the "open shop" is upheld in a decision rendered to-day by Judge Charles Leslie, in the District Court of Douglas County, in a suit brought by Attorney-General Reed, of Nebraska, enjoin the Omaha unions and opposed employers from carrying their fifferences to a point inimical to the orderly course of business.

The attorney-general's suit was filed under the "Junkin act," prohibiting combinations in restraint of trade, and was directed against the opposing parties as codefendants, charging each with conspiracy in violation of the act

The court held that "There can be no question that the unions have the right to organize, or combine for their protection and welfare. And their right to do things in furtherance of their aims, so far as they do not interfere with the rights of others, is clear. Unions not directly involved in a strike may decline, if they so desire, to work and may approach nonunion men with request to leave the work or to join lence, make no threats nor employ in-

The right of employers to combine to protect their rights is equally strongly put in the decision, with the clear statement that "lockouts" calculated to harm men not involved in strikes, or tending to force outside and disinterested persons to side with them against the unions, is conspiracy in restraint of trade within the meaning

Al Jolson was the pivot about which the performance revolved, and the pivot was by no means a fixed one. He was constantly on the move and always breaking out in some new place. Jolson is unique; he is a rara avis in black-face comedy; he has always been a kind of composite of Primrose and

Safeguard Your Food Supplies

Many families now buy food in larger quantities than usual, either to save on the cost or to be sure of what they want. These people should guard carefully against rats, which in one night may destroy a whole ham, several dozen eggs, or damage several dollars worth of other foods. The only way to prevent this is by exterminating the rats or mice, and this is most easily accomplished by using Stearns' Paste. A small box of this paste, which can be bought for a few cents, often exterminates a whole family of rodents in a single night; it is also effective with roaches and waterbugs.—Adv.

BAKER DOES NOT FAVOR IT

Crented. WASHINGTON, October 23.—Com menting on suggestions that the rank of field marshal be created for General Pershing as commander-in-chief of the American expeditionary forces, Secretary Baker said to-day he was not disposed to propose the change. He indicated a feeling that the government should preserve the traditions of the service which make the rank of general the highest. If the expeditionary force eventually consists of several field armies; each probably will be commanded by a lieutenant-general. Secretary Baker said the question of naming litutenant-generals was not now under consideration.
